First Annual Conference of the Social Sciences

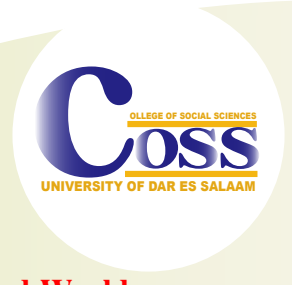

Call for Conference Papers

Title of the Conference: The Voice of Social Sciences

Conference Theme: Achieving Sustainable Development in the Interconnected World

Conference venue: Mlimani City, Dar es Salaam Tanzania

Date: 17-18 November 2014

Introduction

The College of Social Sciences will organize its First Annual Conference titled the Voice of Social Sciences from 17th to 18th November 2014 in Dar es Salaam. The Conference theme for this year is “Achieving Sustainable Development in the Interconnected World.” The theme stems from the fact that we are living in an interconnected world where planning by one society is affected or affects other societies. Despite substantial contribution of social science research, most of the findings have not been widely disseminated hence do not feature adequately into development planning processes in many countries. This conference therefore will provide an avenue for interaction between social scientists and users of research output.

Targeted audience

Academics, researchers, consultants, government officials, policy makers, civil societies, development partners, and students.

Conference subthemes:

The Conference will accept any paper which is on the following topics or related, provided it is drawing and contributing to social sciences understanding:-

1. Population, health, human capital skills formation, labour market, employment and social security, gender, housing, urbanization, informal economies and banking.
2. Natural resource management, environment, livelihood, agriculture and sustainable development;
3. The state, corruption, governance, peace, conflicts, security, citizenship, identity, regionalism, unionism and constitutionalism;
4. Data, information, Geographical Information Sciences, social media and social language.

All Conference papers that will meet the expected standards may be considered for publication in one of the following four journals depending on the focus of the papers and journals' instructions:-

The African Review: a Journal of African Politics, Development and International Affairs hosted in the Department of Political Science and Public Administration;

Journal of Geographical Association of Tanzania hosted in the Department of Geography;

Tanzanian Economic Review hosted in the Department of Economics;

Tanzanian Journal of Population and Development hosted in the Centre for Population Studies and Research.
