

Do you want to put your know-how and skills to use where they are needed? Do you want to work abroad and experience different cultures? Then the Centre for International Migration and Development (CIM) is your ideal partner for finding a responsible position in the field of development policy. We place highly qualified staff with employers in Asia, Africa, Latin America and Europe.

The International Maize and Wheat Improvement Center, known by its Spanish acronym, CIMMYT, part of the CGIAR Consortium in El Batán, Texcoco is looking for a Social scientist specialising in gender (m/f).

We are looking for you:

The International Maize and Wheat Improvement Center (CIMMYT) needs your expertise to strengthen its gender-related approach to research work. CIMMYT is the world's premier center for research, development, and training in maize and wheat and in farming systems for those two essential food crops. From its headquarters in Mexico and offices throughout the developing world, the center works with partners worldwide to reduce poverty and hunger by sustainably increasing the productivity of maize and wheat cropping systems. The center has approximately 180 specialized research staff from over 40 countries, along with 700 support staff, working at 5 research stations in Mexico and 18 offices throughout the developing world.

The research centre is part of a global agricultural research partnership and collaborates with many international organisations. With your support, CIMMYT wishes to include gender aspects more extensively in its research work and reorganise its internal processes to take account of gender issues.

Your tasks will involve:

- Providing support in establishing and expanding agricultural research team skills, so that they can better analyse, process and document gender mainstreaming issues
- Providing support in restructuring internal procedures with a focus on gender mainstreaming
- Providing support in setting up a knowledge management system on the subject of gender

Your profile:

- University degree in social sciences with a focus on gender issues, or an alternative qualification suitable for the role
- Several years' experience in the field of gender and equality related to agricultural research, preferably in Africa, Asia and/or Latin America.
- A knowledge of planning, steering and implementing projects
- Experience of development cooperation and rural development issues in one or several of the above mentioned regions

- Fluent business English
- Knowledge of Spanish would be an advantage

We offer:

- Interesting and varied tasks with personal responsibility in an international environment
- Collaboration with other development cooperation organisations
- Professional preparation for your assignment abroad
- A local employment contract as an integrated expert for an initial two-year period, with the possibility of extension
- Attractive monthly salary subsidies and social security benefits in addition to your local salary

Note: This position is currently available; there is no application deadline.
